Modern Savage — Pricing Strategy

The Decision

Every launch document references "founding member pricing" but no price has been set. Jesse needs to make this call before Stripe is live and Email 1 goes out. This brief gives the recommendation and the framework behind it.

Recommendation: £59/month regular subscription, £47/month founding member (20% off, 12-month lock). See tables below.

Product	Regular Subscription	One-Time	Founding Member Price
Modern Savage Adult Blend	£59/month	£69	£47/month
BG Summit (Adult + Creatine)	£64/month	£74	£52/month
Min (Kids Blend)	£39/month	£46	£31/month
Family Bundle (Adult + Kids)	£89/month	£106	£71/month

Competitive Landscape

Brand	Price (subscription)	Notes
Ancestral Supplements	~$38/month US (~£30 UK equiv)	Market leader in organ supplements. Quality, no celebrity profile.
Heart & Soil (Paul Saladino)	~$55-65/month US (~£44-52 UK)	Premium tier, targeted blends, strong community. Direct competitor.
AG1 (Athletic Greens)	£79/month UK subscription	The premium supplement benchmark in UK consumers' minds
Nutricost / Amazon generics	£15-25/month UK	Budget tier. Not Modern Savage's competition.

The gap Modern Savage should own: Above Heart & Soil (~£44-52) but below AG1 (£79). The £55-65 subscription range is unoccupied by a major brand with a credible celebrity anchor in the UK market.

Why £59/month Works

Against Ancestral Supplements: ~97% more expensive. Justified by: Bear's personal story and credibility, UK-made narrative, a blend designed for the 30-45 male professional (not just the ancestral health enthusiast), and the kids blend as a family product. Ancestral targets enthusiasts; Modern Savage targets the mainstream premium buyer.

Against Heart & Soil: 10-15% premium. Justified by: UK brand (local buyer preference), the Bear brand pull, and cleaner positioning. Modern Savage has higher name recognition in the UK than H&S.

Against AG1: 25% cheaper. AG1 is greens-based, US-founded, and has a different nutritional thesis. The proximity to AG1's pricing positions Modern Savage as premium but not unapproachable. Buyers who looked at AG1 and found £79 too high will feel £59 is the rational alternative.

One-time vs subscription gap: £10 premium for one-time (£69 vs £59). This is ~15% — enough to make subscription the obviously better value without making one-time prohibitive. Industry standard is 10-20%.

Founding Member Pricing Mechanics

Recommendation: £47/month for founding members — locked for 12 months.

That's 20% below regular subscription (£59). After 12 months, members receive 60 days' notice that pricing moves to the regular subscription rate. They can cancel or stay.

Why 20% off, not more:

- 20% is meaningful (saves £144/year vs regular price)
- 30%+ discounts cheapen the brand before it launches — it signals the product is worth less
- The founding member benefit is the price lock, the early access, and Bear's personal engagement — not a fire sale

Why 12-month lock, not permanent:

- Permanent founding pricing creates a two-tier subscriber base indefinitely
- 12 months is a genuine thank-you — a full year at the special rate
- AG1 raised prices 25% in 2022 and retained most subscribers. Modern Savage will have stronger community by month 12.

What to say in Email 1: "Founding member pricing is reserved for the people who believed before we launched. It's available to you, and it won't be once we open to the public." No price mentioned in Email 1 — that comes at launch. The urgency is real (170 spots, closes July 1).

US Pricing

US subscribers pay in USD. Suggested pricing:

Product	Regular Sub	One-Time	Founding
Adult Blend	$69/month	$79	$55/month
BG Summit	$75/month	$85	$60/month
Kids (Min)	$45/month	$52	$36/month
Family Bundle	$105/month	$122	$84/month

Note on UK vs US pricing: These are separate price points — not a straight currency conversion. UK price includes 20% VAT (so net-of-VAT on a £59 subscription is ~£49). US price is pre-tax. The USD prices reflect that US consumers are used to slightly higher supplement prices than the UK equivalent suggests.

Ships A Lot logistics: Confirm whether the US shipping cost is bundled into subscription price or added at checkout. If shipping is added at checkout in the US, reduce the sticker price by ~$5 to keep total cost comparable to the UK price.

LTV Modelling

At 5% monthly churn (industry standard for new supplement brands), the average subscriber lasts 20 months.

Scenario	Monthly Price	20-Month LTV
Founding member — UK	£47	£940
Regular subscriber — UK	£59	£1,180
Family bundle — UK regular	£89	£1,780
Family bundle — founding	£71	£1,420

Churn sensitivity: Dropping churn from 5% to 4% (which good onboarding and community building achieves) increases average subscriber lifetime from 20 months to 25 months — a 25% LTV increase on the same pricing.

The implication: Post-purchase onboarding is worth more than pricing optimisation at this stage. A 1% churn improvement adds ~£295 LTV per customer. A £5 price increase adds £100 LTV. Invest in retention.

Bundle and Upsell Architecture

Family Bundle (Adult + Kids)

- Regular: £89/month (vs £98 if bought separately — 9% saving)
- Founding: £71/month
- Launch this alongside the adult product — it's a simpler purchase decision for a parent who's already buying for themselves

Note: The kids blend colostrum allergen declaration must appear at checkout AND in all bundle marketing. Regulation (EU) No 1169/2011 (UK retained). Non-negotiable.

3-Month Bundle (One-Time, Gift Option)

- 3-month supply one-time: £189 (vs £207 at £69/bottle — 9% saving)
- Good for gifting and for first-time buyers who want to try without a subscription commitment
- Name it: "The 90-Day Foundation" — makes the purchase a commitment to the protocol, not a trial

Referral Credit

- Give a friend a free first month (they pay nothing)
- Referrer gets one free month when the friend completes their first paid month
- This is NOT a discount — it's a credit. Doesn't damage the brand price point.
- Full details in the post-purchase onboarding sequence (OB-5, Day 28)

What Jesse Needs to Decide

1. Prices: Accept the recommendation above or adjust. The £59/month adult regular subscription and £47 founding member price are the anchor decisions — everything else follows.
1. US pricing: Confirm whether Ships A Lot pricing is inclusive of shipping or not — this affects whether US prices need to be higher to cover shipping costs built into the subscription.
1. Founding member lock period: 12 months as recommended, or a different term?
1. Kids blend timing: Launch simultaneously with adult on July 1, or hold the kids blend for a second phase? Simultaneous is better for the family bundle narrative, but it's more complexity at launch.
1. Currency: Accept dual-currency (GBP + USD) or launch GBP-only first, add USD in Q3?

One Risk to Flag

The founding member list has 170 people. Some are almost certainly journalists, influencers, and industry contacts — not just consumers. If the founding member price leaks before public launch, it sets an anchor. The public launch price needs to be clearly higher than the founding price for the discount to have meaning.

Make sure the price is not disclosed publicly until Email 4 (the 7-day countdown email, June 24). Before that, the messaging is: "founding member pricing available — find out when we launch."

Built April 28, 2026. Jesse to review before Stripe goes live. No prices have been communicated to any subscriber or third party yet — this is the internal recommendation.
